Why still purchase R-410A?

- Existing Systems: Many current HVAC systems use R410A, so it is needed for servicing and maintenance
- Availability: While production is decreasing, R410A is still available for use in new and existing systems
- Cost: While refrigerant costs are expected to rise as production decreases, R410A is still a cost-effective option for certain applications
- Familiarity: Technicians are familiar with R410A, requiring less specialized training compared to newer refrigerants like R32 and R454B
- Non-flammability (in contrast to some replacements): R410A is classified as non-flammable (A1), unlike some of its replacements which are mildly flammable (A2L)

Win big with your R-410A purchase! Here is your chance to earn a chance to win prizes:

- The highest dollar amount of purchased R-410A equipment will receive 8 suite tickets to the January 23 Cleveland Cavaliers game against the Kings (value of $2400. Minimum purchase of $1000 required.)
